I chose to add the following two artifacts to my portfolio as indicators for Responsible Contributing Citizen because…………………………

Reflection:
I have become a responsible contributing citizen throughout my high school career. I have shown this in both my personal life and my educational experience. I know that by understanding my impact on others and in my community I will be more valuable as a member…………………………
Demonstrates the Success Indicator:
A contributing citizen is someone who partakes in any activity whether it be social or personal that helps the community or even the world. My Letter to Editor was for a social issue or concern that I had to write about and possibly get put in the local paper. That was a good way to hopefully contribute as a citizen. My PSI Letter that I had drafted was a responsible choice and shows that I contributed at least a little bit as a citizen.

Reflection:
I don’t think of myself as a contributing citizen all the time, but understand it is an important attribute. One thing I think illustrates how I can work toward this is my letter of resignation at PSI, although the program didn’t work for me I tried my best and hardest while I was there and I believe that somewhat makes me a contributing citizen and shows that I am responsible enough to present a letter of resignation. I haven’t really contributed as much as others but, I also recycle and help the environment as much as I can. I learned to become a better citizen in my education at high school but I may not always show it.
